APPALACHIAN STUDIES CONFERENCE ORGANIZED

The Appalachian Studies Conference was born at a planning meeting of 30 Appalachian scholars from 18 institutions in seven states representing twelve different academic disciplines, who met in Berea, Kentucky, on November 4 and 5, 1977. After sharing experiences, ideas and hopes, a final session saw the formal organization of the Appalachian Studies Conference whose purposes were seen to be:

1) to encourage Appalachian Studies through an annual conference, a newsletter and ad hoc meetings as necessary;
2) to provide a forum for the exchange of research information;
3) to coordinate analysis of the region's problems across disciplinary lines;
4) to increase and spread knowledge of things Appalachian;
5) to be an advocate for Appalachian research;
6) to relate scholarship to regional needs and the concerns of the Appalachian people; and
7) to support other organized efforts in harmony with the purposes of the Appalachian Studies Conference.

The A.S.C. considers itself an umbrella agency embracing various disciplines and points of view, and invites all with an interest in Appalachia into membership. At this point the organization is a loose one - our only officers are members of a Steering Committee with two co-chairmen and a treasurer, who have specific responsibilities for our first meeting in Berea on March 10 and 11, 1978.

The model for the Annual Conference was seen to be the very excellent conference honoring Cratis Williams in April, 1976, in Boone, North Carolina (see An Appalachian Symposium, J.W. Williamson (ed.); Boone: Appalachian State University Press, 1977). The particular theme agreed to for the first conference on March 10-11, 1978, will be Appalachian Studies, with special sections on 1) social action on specific regional problems; 2) the state of the creative arts in the region; 3) the status of academic research; and 4) specific developments in Appalachian Studies programs and curricula.

MEMBERSHIP INVITED

All persons interested in the aims of the Appalachian Studies Conference are invited to join. The annual membership fee is $5.00, students $3.00. (See Membership and Conference Registration form.)
FIRST ANNUAL CONFERENCE

The First Annual Meeting of the Appalachian Studies Conference will be held on March 10-11, 1978, at Berea College. The theme of the Conference will be "Appalachian Studies: Where Do We Go From Here?" The intention is to build upon the essays in the recently published Guide to Appalachian Studies (see enclosure) in an effort to assess the current state of Appalachian Studies and to determine what direction Appalachian Studies should take in the future. The Conference is to begin with three papers by Jim Wayne Miller, John Gaventa and Archie Green which will provide a rationale for Appalachian Studies Programs and discuss the goals or objectives around which such programs should be organized. Robert Scott, Federal Co-Chairman of the Appalachian Regional Commission, will address the Conference in the evening, and this will be followed by music by the McLain Family Band, a poetry reading by Jeff Daniel Marion and folk dancing. The following morning, Conference participants will attend a workshop related to their particular Appalachian concern. The workshops are designed as a means for people who share common Appalachian interests, to get acquainted, share experiences, and discuss ways of working together. Five workshops are currently scheduled (see program), and others will be arranged depending upon the interest of those in attendance. There will be a business meeting later in the morning to discuss the format and future of the Appalachian Studies Conference. The afternoon session will offer an opportunity for general discussion and closing remarks by Gurney Norman.

The registration fee for the Conference is $15.00 (nc charge for students). Meals are available at Berea College Food Service - $7.14 (3 meals). Dinner only-$4.72. Each person is responsible for his/her own lodging on Friday evening, March 10. Enclosed is a list of motels in the Berea area.

Please bring with you any course outlines or bibliographies you would like to share. There will be space available to display books, journals, etc. For information on this, contact Loyal Jones, C.P.O. 2336, Berea, KY 40404.

The Conference is being organized by a Steering Committee consisting of those named below. We welcome any suggestions or comments which you might have. Borden Mace, executive director of the Appalachian Consortium has described this Conference as an opportunity to bring diverse "efforts into a common focus and provide directions and models for colleges, schools, centers, and cooperatives seeking to launch programs and activities that will help Appalachians to know themselves, their history, and their problems..." We hope you will join us in this endeavor.

A Guide to Appalachian Studies

Edited by STEPHEN L. FISHER
J. W. WILLIAMSON
and
JUANITA LEWIS

For the first time, a truly comprehensive and practical assessment of the current state of Appalachian scholarship, writing, and teaching. This special number of the Appalachian Journal brings together a group of noted scholars who survey the work in Appalachian Studies done in their fields, criticize the bad and praise the good, and suggest future directions for research. A Guide to Appalachian Studies is an apologia for regional scholarship, a history of the development of Appalachian Studies, and a manifesto for the future. No one interested in Appalachia can afford to be without it.

For almost two years the editors of A Guide to Appalachian Studies have been surveying both the scholarship (in and out of the region) and the educational programs in Appalachian colleges and universities. This Guide contains the results of that massive effort, along with fifteen essays of outstanding merit and seven appendices of useful information for scholars and writers who intend to pursue research on Appalachia and for teachers and administrators who want to improve their offerings in Appalachian Studies.

The Appalachian scholarly “underground” will find in A Guide to Appalachian Studies a much larger and invigorating community of fellow laborers. A Guide to Appalachian Studies gives scattered scholars and teachers for the first time a text and a tool with which to fight for the recognition of their scholarship and their teaching interests. A Guide to Appalachian Studies is intellectually rigorous, academically solid, educationally sound. It contains the best of tough, sinewy, no-nonsense theory and practice. It is a landmark publication.

The people of Appalachia, so long the victims of various forces of exploitation and condescension, including the cultural kind, deserve what this guide has to offer—a strong and vigorous departure, a break with old stereotypes and cliches. The authors want to examine a region's history and traditions, its continuing social and economic and political problems, its needs and possibilities—and do so in such a way that ordinary people by the thousands are not, yet again, made the convenient scapegoats for various misguided or wrong-headed policies and programs....These essays bluntly call for a look at what has actually happened in Appalachia, and for what might happen, given various changes of direction. As an outsider who has worked in the region, and come to respect its people (their dignity, their resourcefulness, constantly tested), I can only hope that this guide will be a prelude to a region's transformation—from a kind of servitude to freedom.
